

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Autumn Leaves.

Flower and leaf of vine and tree,
Grass of meadow, weed of mire—
Summer gathered them to be
Fragots for the autumn's fire.

Smoke-like haze on vale and hill;
Flames of gold and crimson bright
Into life now leap and fill
Field and forest with their light.

All the glory of the year
Kindled into beauty so,
Soon the winter will be here,
Soon the curfew—then the snow.

So these lovely legends I lay
In my book, all gold and red;
Embers for a winter's day
When the autumn's fire is dead.

MORNING SONG.

By JOANNA BAILLIE.

Joanna Baillie, one of the most eminent British female poets, was born near Glasgow in 1762. She published in 1788 the first volume of a series of "Plays on the Passions," which was well received. Her tragedy of "The Family Legend" was brought out at Edinburgh in 1810 with brilliant success. Sir Walter Scott having written the epilogue, and one of the principal parts having been performed by Mrs. Siddons. Among her other dramas, "The Maids of Honour" and "Barth," enjoyed perhaps the highest reputation. Miss Baillie resided during the greater part of her life at Hampstead, near London, where she died in 1851.

Up! quit thy bow! late wears the hour,
Long have the rooks cawed round the tower,
O'er flower and tree loud hums the bee,
And the wild kid sports merrily.
The sun is bright, the sky is clear;
Wake, lady, wake; and hasten here.

Up, maiden fair, and bind thy hair,
And rouse thee in the breezy air!
The lulling stream that soothed thy dream
Is dancing in the sunny beam.
Waste not these hours, so fresh, so gay;
Leave thy soft couch and haste away!

Up! Time will tell the morning bell
Its service-sound has chimed well;
The aged crone keeps house alone,
The reapers to the fields are gone.
Lose not these hours, so cool, so gay;
Lo! while thou sleepest they haste away!

This series began in The Times-Dispatch Sunday, Oct. 11, 1905. One is published each day.
